

There's a leather that is right for you.

The inherent advantages of leather, as well as the range of grades and colours available, make leather furniture an incredibly versatile choice.

TYPES OF LEATHER

Natural Leather

These premium hides are the highest quality of leather, fully authentic because they retain character marks such as scars, stretch marks, and subtle shade variations. Over time, these leathers soften further and develop a beautiful patina, taking on a final finish that is truly unique.

Corrected Leathers

These leathers offer performance, consistency, and durability. They have been buffed or sanded to remove imperfections, creating a finish that enhances appearance and cleanability. Corrected leathers will not compromise value and are the ideal choice for those with an active lifestyle.

Why Leather?

Leather improves with age. It will not wear down, but will develop a unique character

Leather breathes and is comfortable in both winter and summer

Pigmented and Semi Aniline leathers undergo careful processing to make them resistant to fading

Leather is easy to keep clean - no lengthy or expensive procedures are required

Fireside Leather

This leather will be represented in a unique way on every piece, creating variations in tone and colour, adding depth and beauty to the furniture.
